

Charleston Profile

Senior Airman Corey Clements

Airman Tiffany Tonjes 437th Supply Squadron

Airman Tiffany Tonjes is a receiving clerk with the supply squadron. Her duties include checking in property arriving at the squadron and delivering it to either the customer or to storage.

Tonjes is originally from Denver, Colo. Thursday will mark her first year in the Air Force. Her father, grandfather and brother served in the U.S. military.

Tonjes said she joined the Air Force for the travel and educational opportunities. She's currently working on her Career Development Course to upgrade to five skill level. Following that, she plans to begin working on a bachelor's degree. She plans to eventually be a licensed practical nurse.

She said she enjoys being around her co-workers and supervisors. In her spare time, Tonjes enjoys water sports, camping, dancing and spending time with friends. She also volunteers to help with squadron activities.

Tonjes said the best thing about Charleston is "being near the beach."

In the Air Force

New reading list: The Air Force Chief of Staff's Reading Program, which began in 1997, is designed to promote personal professional development for all Air Force members, civilian and military. The program aims to instill both a deeper sense of pride in the service's rich heritage and a stronger understanding of each member's role in meeting U.S. security objectives.

Each quarter, one of the books from the CSAF's Reading List will be featured. Airmen of all ranks and grades and civilians are encouraged to read the featured title, which is available at all Air Force libraries.

This quarter's featured book is "A Few Great Captains" by DeWitt Copp. Its title was taken from a quote by Gen. George C. Marshall, who said, "No Army produces more than a few great captains."
